

Cut out the questions and fold them up as small as possible. Using a funnel, put each question along with some confetti into about 12 or more separate balloons. Blow up the balloons using helium and tie them into a bundle. Tie the bundle on the back of a chair on which the bride-to-be will be seated. Divide the guests into teams and have them take turns selecting a balloon question to pop and answer. The bride-to-be determines correct answers. See website for full instructions.

What is the grooms last name?	How did the groom and I meet?
Is the groom younger, older or the same age as me?	Does the groom have a nickname? If so, what is it?
When proposed to, did I scream, laugh, cry or simply say yes with a smile?	Was my initial contact with the groom full of hate, tolerance or love at first sight?
Where did the groom propose?	How long have the groom and I been together?
What is the grooms last name?	Who is more likely to compromise; the groom, I or neither?
Are we the type of couple that desires no children, 1-3 children or an entire litter of children if possible?	Where did the groom and I meet?

Use this page to create your own Pop the Question questions. Write your questions in the boxes, cut them out then funnel them into the balloons along with some confetti. Add helium to the balloons, bundle them up and you've got your own unique Pop the Question game!
